Design Document of Tianchang Wang's Personal Website

Project description

This project originally a requirement of course CS5610 at Northeastern university. It also acts as a bridge between me and the target audience of the website. My potential clients, future employers and recruiters could check my skills and contact me via email or other social medias with ease for a better coperation. All my skills are also supported by my past experiences.

A personal collection gallery is also included to share my liked photos and technique products.

User Personas

- Potential clients: individuals or small companies who needs a freelancer to do web development jobs.
- Employers and Recruiters: companies who needs to hire a reliable web developer.
- Colleagues: who needs to check my career updates and my new interests.

User stories

- A new real-estate company needs a website to display the houses and accept customer inquiries. They found that Tianchang showed his skills on web development and can handle the whole process of developing supporting by his past works, so they reach out for help.
- A startup company needs to hire a experienced web developer to develop their MVP version of product. They found that Tianchang has experience of developing two MVP products of a unicorn AI company that decided to reach out via the email, Linkedin, Twitter or Instagram provided on the website.
- Colleagues(past or current) would like to check Tianchang's update on career. They could view Tianchang's latest resume and connects with Tianchang again.

Design mockups(WireFrames)

The mockups are designed via Figma

The whole sites contains with two pages, landing page and collection page, and six sections: hero, about, resume, collection, contact and footer.

Landing Page

Hero Section with photos

navbar

About section

billboard, with Neubrutalism design directs to collection page after clicking

Basic introduction

social media links

Resume section

Contact & Footer

Collection Page   navbar

img   img   img

img   img   img

img   img   img

Contact & Footer